Complaints lead to BBC changes

THE BBC was forced to re-record the introduction to a broadcast of Any Questions in Haverhill following complaints of the show's negative portrayal of the town.

The Radio 4 show's presenter Jonathan Dimbleby came under fire following the downbeat description he gave of the town when he chaired the panel at Samuel Ward Academy.

Saddened residents and guests at the evening said the show was spoiled by his introduction that "appeared to describe the town as it was 20 years ago and not as it is now".

The audience said they were shocked to be told how Haverhill suffered being "isolated" with "unemployment and social problems".

Although the first live broadcast on Friday evening had already been aired, producers then re-recorded a different introduction for the repeat on Saturday afternoon.

A spokeswoman for Radio 4 said: "In drawing attention to the achievements of the school, Jonathan Dimbleby's introduction somewhat overstated the economic challenges facing the town of Haverhill."

"It was pointed out to us immediately after the live broadcast and we took appropriate steps to ensure the Saturday repeat edition of Any Questions was amended accordingly."

In the amended version, which is the only podcast of the show available on BBC iPlayer, Mr Dimbleby explained the history of the town and said it had "obviously moved on a long way from there but still has its fair share of social problems".

Howard Lay, principal at the academy, said: "These opening remarks about the context of Haverhill were inappropriate because they reflected the town as it was 20 years ago and not as it is now."

"I feel saddened and upset that the national press continues to portray Haverhill as a 'new town' in a difficult context when in reality it is a well-established, dynamic and forward-looking place."

"I am, however, really, pleased that the BBC did accept editorial and research errors and corrected these for the Saturday edition when Haverhill was described in a more upbeat way."

"I am proud of the way Haverhill has progressed into the positive, entrepreneurial and forward-looking town it now is but I do think it is worth considering again how we brand and market the town."

Guests on the show included the Shadow Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change Caroline Flint MP, Revd Canon Rosie Harper – Chaplain to the Bishop of Buckingham and member of General Synod, Pensions Minister Steve Webb MP and Conservative MP Mark Reckless who led the recent Tory rebellion on the Euro budget.

'Savile effect' sees rise in reports of sex crimes

HAVERHILL is experiencing the "Jimmy Savile effect", the town's police inspector has said following a leap of nearly 35 per cent in the number of sexual crimes reported.

So far this year 26 sexual offences have been reported to police in Haverhill, compared with an annual average over the past three years of 17.

Inspector Peter Ferrie said: "That's a big increase of nine. Having looked at a few of these cases it seems we're still getting a lot of historic reports because of the Jimmy Savile case and historical childhood allegations that have come in.

"It [the Jimmy Savile scandal] has galvanised those who have been affected 20, 30 or even 40 years ago and people are walking in and telling us now.

"It's cathartic for them to come and report it, even if the offenders are dead. A lot of this is due to what we're calling 'the Jimmy Savile effect'."

At a meeting with town councillors on Tuesday, Inspector Ferrie said this pattern is something forces across the country are experiencing since the scandal broke at the start of October.

The inspector's crime reports also showed that during a one-week period earlier this month, there were double the number of reported criminal damage and arson offences in Haverhill.

Between November 5 and 11, 16 crimes of this nature were reported, compared with an average of eight.

In the past seven days – from November 21 to 27 – there had been a return to a more "normal" figure of seven.

Insp Ferrie explained: "We had a blip and I can't explain why it happened. It was houses, cars and garages and all over the town. There was no specific place that suffered more than others."

Other main crimes are down in the town, compared with the average for the past three years, the inspector said.

House burglaries reported so far this year are 29, compared with the average of 36, and other burglaries reported are 64, compared with 92 previously.

Up until November 11, the yearly statistics for Haverhill showed 1,111 crimes reported compared with an average of 1,259 – a decreased of 148 crimes compared to the average of the past three years.

Insp Ferrie added: "The main ones are nearly all down and all the rest are quite significantly down."

Top students return in triumph

Prizes were given to the best students in each subject and the Principal's Award for Excellence went jointly to Fae Mead and Kieran Glassmith for their outstanding GCSE results.

Council begins Burton Centre appeal

AN appeal has been launched by Haverhill Town Council after its bid to manage a community facility was turned down.

St Nicholas Hospice Care won the bid to manage the Burton Centre to transform it into a hub for outreach services, including therapy and bereavement support, as reported in the Weekly News earlier this month.

But the town council, which also submitted a bid to use the site as a community centre offering youth facilities, has said the way the decision was made needs to be investigated. The council was told their bid was rejected because of long-term financial sustainability and local support.

Councillors voted on Tuesday to back the town clerk in appealing the decision over how the winning bid was chosen.

They also believe that when county councillors were asked to make their decisions on which bid they supported, they were not presented with the town council's plans.

Haverhill town mayor Cllr Pat Hanlon said: "This is nothing to do with St Nicholas. It's the process that we're all angry about. They've gone about making this decision the wrong way."

Cllr Gary Stroud said it appeared the council was making decisions before they had all the facts before them.

He said: "It seems they are ignoring the wishes of the people of Haverhill. I'm speechless about this."

The town council prepared the bid, which obviously had the support of elected members, yet they feel their opinions of what is best for the town have not been listened to.

Will Austin, town clerk, said: "We are pleased that St Nicholas want to bring much-needed services to Haverhill.

"But the reasons our bid was refused, on the grounds of financial sustainability, are plainly absurd.

"I think the local support 'issue' doesn't stand up – if 14 local councillors, who are elected for the town, show their support and that's not considered local support, then I don't know what is."

Suffolk County Council said it was unable to comment at this stage and will wait to see the details of the appeal.

Xbox is stolen during burglary

A GAMES console and beer were stolen during a house burglary in Haverhill.

Thieves stole the Xbox and 17 bottles of beer from a bedroom in a house in Chedburgh Place after breaking in on Monday between 12.45pm and 5.30pm.

Anyone with information about the offence should contact police on 101.

Youngsters wrapping festive treats for Asia

GENEROUS students have been filling shoe boxes with goodies for youngsters less fortunate than themselves.

More than 80 boxes have been filled with gifts and Christmas treats by pupils at Castle Manor Academy in Haverhill and will soon be on a ship on their way to Asia.

Their effort is part of national campaign Operation Christmas Child, which last year sent 1.2 million shoe boxes to children in hospitals, orphanages, homeless shelters and poor communities around the world.

Year 9 student Callum explained: "Our boxes are going to be travelling on a ship to the Baltic Sea, then they are going by train across Russia and they will end up in Kyrgyzstan in time for Christmas. I hope they get there in time because it snows a lot in the mountains."

Alison Weston, community cohesion co-ordinator at the school added: "I am so proud of our students. They have worked really hard to put together 86 shoeboxes. Special mention must go to Mrs Samuels' tutor group who managed to fill 12 boxes on their own. Year 10 student Courtney Farrant handed in four.

"Everyone in the tutor group contributed with Year 7 students Courtney and Morgan doing a fantastic job in sorting and wrapping."

Campaign for disabled sport

DISABLED people in Suffolk inspired by the success of the Paralympics are being urged to explore sporting opportunities.

The push comes as part of a new campaign called Suffolk Get Active which is raising awareness of the range of disability sports clubs and sessions in the area, from wheelchair basketball through to disability swimming, athletics and sailing.

Suffolk Get Active is led by Live Well Suffolk in partnership with disability charity Optua, alongside Suffolk County Council and Suffolk Sport.

Tim Roberts, director at Live Well Suffolk, said: "The 2012 Paralympics was the biggest ever held and we know that there are hundreds of people across the county who have been inspired by the range of disability sports available."

Bollards damaged

THE hunt is on for a large vehicle that severely damaged bollards in Haverhill town centre.

Two metal 'Haverhill' bollards have been damaged, one of which was flattened, following the incident on Saturday evening.

Haverhill's police inspector Peter

Ferrie, said there had been "quite a lot of concern" among residents and business owners about the damage.

If residents saw anyone driving erratically late on Saturday night or in the early hours of Sunday morning they should call police on 101.

Traders slam free parking

BY LEANNE EHREN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

TRADERS in Haverhill have said the council's latest attempt to draw shoppers into the town before Christmas is "a waste of time".

Flyers have this week been handed out stating St Edmundsbury Borough Council is offering free car parking after 4pm every Friday until Christmas.

But shop owners have said this offer is too little too late, with the market being mostly packed away by nightfall and residents not wanting to shop that late on a Friday.

Mick Pipe has owned household appliance business M J Pipe Ltd for more than 30 years and said there is "no sense" in what the council are offering.

Mr Pipe said: "It will be no help to us what so ever. Considering the government is talking about saving shops and town centres locally, I think to give us this is a bit of a joke.

Parking dilemma: Haverhill shop owners have hit out at free parking after 4pm on Fridays.

"A good idea would be to give us a whole day of free parking to encourage people to shop here."

His thoughts were echoed by David Jaggs, who manages Morley's Leisure Wear, in Queen Street.

Mr Jaggs, who has run the shop in the town for 27 years, said: "It's not good enough. They should do what they do in other places like Sudbury where you can get three hours' free parking.

"Most shops shut on a Friday at 5.30pm and the market's packed up - it's not worthwhile."

Michael Egan, owner of Quick Service Show Repairs, also in Queen Street, said it was a pointless effort by the council because cars can park for free in Queen Street once the barriers are opened after 4pm anyway.

He added: "It's a bit of a waste of time and I don't think it will make a difference."

A council spokeswoman said: "Free parking after 4pm on the Fridays leading up to Christmas has been a regular feature in St Edmundsbury car parks for the last three years.

"The measure was introduced to support any traders interested in offering late night shopping. Friday was chosen because market day attracts more people to Haverhill."

Pub boss in running for award

A PUB manager has made it to the final of a prestigious gastro pub awards scheme.

Mike Champion, who runs the Red Lion Inn in Hinxton and Black Bull Inn in Balsham has been shortlisted in the fiercely contested Front of House Manager category of the national Gastropub Awards.

Established as the leading event for the premium end of the food-led pub trade, the ceremony will be held in January with Mike's category recognising the contribution an individual to the success of their business and its level of customer service.

He said: I am absolutely delighted to be announced as a short-listed finalist in such prestigious awards.

"The annual Gastropub Awards are highly regarded and attract interest from the very best operators around the country, so making it this far ranks among my proudest career achievements to date."

The news follows Alex Clarke, landlord of both venues, being invited to address a gathering of the licensed trade's top operators at a recent Freehouse Business Club event at The Nottingham Belfry.

Alex discussed the importance of innovation within the business, and how a variety of ideas at both inns have been conceived and ultimately delivered to the customer.

Commons touch comes to classroom

YOUNGSTERS got an inside look into Parliament when they welcomed their local MP into the classroom.

Year 5 and 6 pupils at New Cangle Primary School, in Chapple Drive, Haverhill, learned about politicians and their role in the Government when West Suffolk MP Matthew Hancock came to visit them last Friday.

As part of Parliament Week, the 80-strong group of 9- to 11-year-olds had been learning about the history of the government, its structure and democracy. Mr Hancock's visit gave them a view into what life is really like as part of the team of MPs running the country.

Teacher Sue Ricketts said: "The children asked him some interesting and quite probing questions and he explained to them, at a level they could understand, what he does."

"It was a very informative afternoon, as the children got a bit more of an inside view into what a politician does."

Date is set for inquest

THE inquest into the death of a Haverhill driver will take place early next year, it was announced on Tuesday.

Adrian Lange, 24, of Ovington Place, was driving a black Nissan Almera in Westley Lane, Horringer, Suffolk, when he was in a collision with a white Nissan van at about 6.30am on January 20 this year. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

The documentary inquest will not call any witnesses and will take place on January 17.

The inquest, which was opened and adjourned the week following his death, will take place at 10am at the Active Business Centre in Bury St Edmunds.

Appeal over stolen papers

POLICE are appealing for information after documents were taken from a car and then discarded on the ground.

The Ford Ka was parked on Camps Road, Haverhill, when the documents were stolen between 6pm on November 21 and 9am the following day. They were found lying in the health centre car park.

Nothing else was stolen and there was no sign of forced entry.

Anyone with information should call police on 101.

Man admits groping woman at food shop

A MAN has pleaded guilty to groping a woman as she shopped in a supermarket.

Ludovico Lancianese, 35, of Cowlinge, pleaded guilty to two charges of sexual assault at West Suffolk Magistrates' Court on Friday.

The court heard how the victim was shopping at Tesco, in Campbell Road, Haverhill, on August 15 when the defendant approached her and touched her on the bottom.

Wayne Ablett, prosecuting,

BY LIZZY BUCHAN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

said: "The first time it happened, she was shopping with her 80-year-old mother and her son.

"She said she felt a brush against her bottom in the fruit and vegetable aisle."

He said the victim assumed it was a mistake and moved away, but while she was waiting in another aisle it happened again.

Mr Ablett said: "She didn't report it at the time, but a few months later, when she was in the same supermarket, she noticed the same man do the same thing."

The second incident took place on November 2 and this time the victim told her sister, who spoke to Tesco staff and the police became involved.

Helen Korfanty, mitigating, said: "My client is absolutely mortified by how he has behaved and his lack of self control, which is shown by his prompt guilty plea.

"Mr Lancianese has been going through a lot of instability in his life."

Ms Korfanty said the defendant had been the victim of an assault in Belgium, and his sister and father are both suffering from serious illnesses.

He was released on bail to return to the same court for sentence on December 18.

The defendant was forbidden from contacting the victim and returning to the supermarket as conditions of his bail.

Trial date is set for Chilford Hall arson accused

TWO men who deny committing arson at one of the region's most popular wedding venues will face trial next month.

Thomas Richardson, 28, and Mark Hall, 27, appeared at Cambridge Crown Court on Monday jointly charged with two counts of arson with intent to endanger life at Chilford Hall in Linton on June 13.

The men, who live at different properties in Pipers Close, Haverhill, have been remanded in custody pending their trial on December 10.

However, they were due to briefly appear at Crown court yesterday for further mention.

Smoke could be seen as far away as Girton when the devastating blaze engulfed the building.

Firefighters managed to save the main house, wine store and shop, but the 18th-century Linton Barn and the Grade II-listed Great Hall, which dates to 1820, was lost, as were the adjoining pavilion and gallery.

Dance success for young stars

DANCE students are at the top of their class after a Haverhill group achieved a 100 per cent pass rate during recent exams.

Pupils at the Lisa Mason School of Dance received medals and certificates in recognition for their hard work at a presentation last Saturday.

The school, based at Castle Manor Business and Enterprise College, in Park Road, has run two sets of exams recently, with many pupils taking two or three exams in ballet, tap, modern and acrobatics.

Principle Lisa Mason said: "I am extremely proud of the children. They have worked extremely hard in class preparing for these exams. The younger children were excited at the prospect of taking an exam and at receiving certificates and medals for their success. They are now all looking forward to starting their next grades and to begin working on their show routines."

The school is also looking forward to 23 of its dancers taking part in this year's pantomime Dick Whittington and his Amazing Cat at Haverhill Arts Centre.

Mr McKenzie has served as an independent director on the Havebury board for the past two years and works as head of corporate finance for one of the UK's largest social housing providers.

He said: "Working with a large organisation and having a background in finance means I have a strong skills set to offer as chairman of Havebury's already dynamic board."

"We are a very caring organisation focused on our local communities and on getting the best possible value from our funding and grants."

"I am determined we will maintain the excellent links we have with our residents, employees and communities."

Havebury Housing Partnership is a not-for-profit association and currently manages 6,000 homes.

Council gives backing to special school bid

BY LEANNE EHREN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

AN education trust in Haverhill is preparing to make a bid to the Government to open a "special free school" for children with social, emotional and behavioural difficulties.

The Castle Partnership Academy Trust, which comprises Castle Manor Academy and Place Farm Primary Academy in Haverhill, wants to open the special school and will submit a bid at the end of the year.

Earlier this year, Samuel Ward Academy won a bid to create Churchill Special Free School, which will provide education for 8- to 18-year-olds with communication, interaction, speech and language difficulties and will open next September.

Principal of the Trust, Madeleine Vigar, said the bid will outline their proposal to provide "high quality, cost effective, all through provision for pupils with social, emotional or behavioural needs".

Support: Cllr Roger Andre.

She said: "These students might be on the cusp of permanent exclusion or beyond and need more specialised academic, person and social support to guide them towards future learning and into adulthood."

"The planned SEBD School will cater for young people with very poor social skills and emotional barriers to learning who also exhibit extreme behaviour, meaning that they are struggling to cope with mainstream school."

At full capacity, there would be 40 primary places and 80 secondary places and student numbers would be phased in over a six-year period.

At a Haverhill Town Council meeting on Tuesday, Cllr Roger Andre said this sort of facility and support is much needed in Haverhill for those youngsters who find it difficult in mainstream school.

He said: "Having a separate building, specialist facilities and teachers and learning in smaller groups often works for these children."

"At the moment it means some children have to be excluded because this is not available. But what having this school means is that these children will not have to always be excluded. They will be given the same support within the same school community."

"Haverhill is leading the way with this."

Haverhill town mayor Pat Hanlon added: "It's absolutely brilliant and it's just what's needed in Haverhill."

The council expressed its full support for the bid, which the school plans to submit to the Department of Education at the end of December.

Talking business

A monthly focus on Haverhill's commercial community with Robin and Daniel Pilley of Successful women inspire changes in working world

FOR this month's column, I thought it was appropriate – as the Young Apprentice show is currently airing – to interview Paloma Vivanco who was a contestant on a previous series of the The Apprentice.

It has always interested me how the selection process works for the show and what happens to the contestants when the cameras have stopped rolling.

I would therefore like to thank Paloma for giving me and you, the readers, the opportunity and insight into life on the show.

It is also great to pick the brains of a successful businesswoman. I think many of you will agree there is not enough female representation in boardrooms across the business world and I hope inspiration can be found from reading her story.

On the topic of female success, I would like to take the opportunity, through my column, of congratulating both Elaine Grubb and Carly Taylor (last month's business column interviewee). Elaine for winning the recent National Landlord's Association Female Letting Agent of the Year following her success from last year when she won Property Manager of the Year. Carly Taylor also secured a large contract for her online/website services business. I know they both get inspiration from successful women's stories, such as Paloma and Karren Brady from The Apprentice, as it demonstrates women with determination and ability can reach their goals.

What is your family background?

I was born in Lima, Peru, in 1980.

My father is half Scottish/half Spanish and my mother is Peruvian. For political reasons in the 1980s my father moved the family to Utah in the United States, where he studied for his doctorate. It was quite tough being an immigrant family, but we were fortunate when my father secured a job with the New Zealand Government to work in the Asian Pacific. This was fortunate for me, as this is a very entrepreneurial part of the world and helped develop my business acumen before I returned to the UK in 2006.

When did you decide you wanted to run your own business?

I was always very motivated toward business. I grew up in a very academic household – my mother was a teacher and my father was a scientist, but I was always more practical and loved the idea of creating and selling a product.

I was also very confident and focused in the economics involved in business. Therefore, after I graduated from Auckland University, I did not like the idea of working for someone else, so I started an agency re-selling services on an ongoing basis, but because of my lack of experience ended up with just one banking client! Needless to say, this ended after nine to 10 months because of the lack of customers, but I learned hard lessons that helped me later in my business career. Telecommunications was my next venture and found that I loved it so much I spent the next 10 years building up a career in this industry.

Business focus:
Robin Pilley with Paloma Vivanco.

What have been your biggest challenges in business?

Well, particularly in my industry, dare I say it, it has always been quite male dominated and there was a degree of questioning regarding my technical competence and commercial confidence. At the start of my career, I struggled with this, trying to prove I was as good if not better than some of my male counterparts. Now I have more self confidence and the work environment is more conducive and respectful towards women, although there is still some way to go. I am a passionate advocate of the benefits of having more women in the boardroom.

What changes, if any, would you make, looking back?

I have thrown myself into ventures, agencies and staff, putting money in without thinking ahead. So I would probably say in some instances I should have been less impulsive. Risks in business should be calculated.

What tips can you give for running a successful business?

I think it is advisable to have a mentor really early on. When I was at university, we spoke of going forward in business but the idea of mentors was never mentioned. As I have grown my business, I have found that entrepreneurs and business people are far more generous with their knowledge and expertise, and that is a good thing. Entrepreneur forums are a relatively new thing, but are brilliant for picking up on good advice.

How important is entrepreneurial spirit in today's world and can it be taught?

Peter Jones believes it can be taught and to a certain degree I agree with that, but I also believe your background plays an important part. I spent my formative years growing up in New Zealand where 80 to 90 per cent of the commerce is made up of small enterprise. It's not something that can be picked up overnight; it is intrinsic to how you have developed combined with drive and ambition. Also, in the States, pitching and presenting are taught in school, you stand and pledge allegiance to the flag on a daily basis and I remember being at elementary school in Utah and learning to present and sell yourself with various enterprises to the school environment.

The government here is addressing this and it's not going to be done overnight, but we are a long way behind the rest of the world and need to catch up if we are going to compete in a global economy.

What was your motivation to enter The Apprentice and what did you learn from the experience?

I was sitting on my couch watching series five and watching the competitors make a mess of the tasks. I was thinking, like I am sure many viewers do, I could do better than them, so I applied and following an arduous selection process I was accepted. I suppose you would call it a 'scripted' reality show these days, but I will say the boardroom is probably the least scripted of the show and could be nerve-wracking. Lord Sugar doesn't miss a beat; he doesn't do the task, but he listens to his two aides, he listens to the apprentices and he has this incredible emotional intelligence enabling him to reconcile what has happened and deliver judgments.

It is intimidating and Lord Sugar is an aggressor in the boardroom – that is his role. We all found we couldn't help but be defensive.

It was also a crash course in media – there was speculation about me being fiery and I played up to that. I wanted the job so much I didn't realise how badly I ripped into and offended people until I watched it after. That was a big lesson in self-awareness. The confidence I gained enabled me to re-launch my network label, which is now doing really well and also put myself forward with Peter Jones and his group of companies.

Community groups to share £18k cashpot

BY LEANNE EHREN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

SIX projects in Haverhill have shared community grants totalling more than £18,000.

Activity workshops for vulnerable adults, an upgrade to ICT facilities to help families with job applications and media sessions for youths at risk of offending are some of the projects sharing a slice of the cash from ONE Haverhill.

Groups and organisations could apply for up to £5,000 from a special grant pot, made available to ONE Haverhill by St Edmundsbury Borough Council, to fund projects that will benefit Haverhill people.

It was the second chance groups had to get their hands on funds after the first round of community grants were awarded earlier this year.

CB9 Media Hub has been awarded £5,000 for its Hangar Sessions aimed at 12- to 16-year-olds deemed to be at risk of offending.

The sessions provide music and media activities during Friday evening term-time sessions and a holiday workshops and events programme, introducing young people to working with artists across a broad range of media and arts and give opportunities to gain qualifications and awards in arts and volunteering.

Haverhill In Bloom received £5,000 for its work to improve of St Mary's Churchyard, as reported in last week's Weekly News.

REACH Community Project, based at the Resource Centre on the Clements estate, has been given £2,500 towards an ICT upgrade to support families in Haverhill when the Universal Credits system is launched in April next year, enabling them to access the online housing register and support people with CV writing and job applications.

Haverhill Town Council received £2,500 towards its Winter In Haverhill promotion for events and activities during December from which more than 40 local groups will benefit.

The Befriending Scheme has been awarded £2,400 towards its activity days and workshops for vulnerable adults aged 16 or over who have learning disabilities and mental health problems.

The Breastfeeding Network has been given £1,172 towards training a group of women to become peer supporters of breastfeeding women to work with mothers and families in the Haverhill area.

Warren Smyth, chairman of ONE Haverhill's Grants Panel, said: "It is fantastic to see so many projects being realised with support from the funding we are providing from St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

"These projects are exciting and will make a real difference to people in Haverhill."

Applications were considered by ONE Haverhill from groups which demonstrated the funding will make a real difference to the people of Haverhill, have clear objectives and plans for the project and how they would measure its effectiveness.

First aid call to school teams

SCHOOLS in Haverhill can take part in a first aid competition to celebrate young people's lifesaving skills.

The St John Ambulance National Schools' First Aid competition encourages school teams to battle it out against their peers by carrying out first aid in a variety of scenarios on live "casualties".

There will be a qualifying round held in Chelmsford, followed by a national final at Drayton Manor theme park in June.

To enter, the teams of four must have completed levels from the St John Ambulance Young First Aider pack, which is available via the charity's online teaching resource Teach the Difference, and submit their on-line applications by February 15.

For more information and to enter the competitions or to contact your nearest schools trainer, telephone 08700 10 49 50 or visit www.teachthedifference.org.uk.

Tuck in: youngsters from Castle Manor Academy with some of the food they used during maths week.

Healthy appetites for maths challenge

HIGH school students have been trying to inspire their younger counterparts with food as part of maths week.

Teenagers from Castle Manor Academy in Haverhill visited a number of primary schools in the town to host a range of fun and exciting maths challenges to engage Year 6 pupils.

All of the activities were focused around food and any food collected as part of different challenges has been donated to Haverhill Food Bank.

Participants were asked to calculate food miles, sort using venn diagrams, weigh produce, use ratio to calculate quantities of ingredients for recipes, as well as other food-related activities.

Joe Mason, the Castle Manor teacher who organised the event, said: "Each school has been really welcoming and we've been able to complete the activities throughout the day with pupils from Year 3 to Year 6."

"It was so nice to see so many students doing maths with so much enthusiasm. The aim of the events was to get the pupils thinking beyond the classroom and about how they can apply their mathematical skills.

"The Castle Manor students and Year 6 student helpers were excellent activity leaders. By the end of the day, the Year 6 students were leading the activities with confidence. It was really good to see students pass on their learning to younger pupils."

The Maths Food Challenge Days took place in Burton End, Clements, Place Farm and St Felix schools.

Refuge starts £15k quest for minibus

BY LEANNE EHREN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A BID by a women's refuge to buy a new minibus to help victims of domestic violence leave Haverhill has been kick-started thanks to a £3,000 grant.

The Women's Aid Centre, in Bury St Edmunds, has set a target of raising at least £15,000 to buy the bus.

Ten families from Haverhill have found refuge at the centre in the past two years.

The group has also helped resettle a further 11 families, who may have left violent relationships in other areas, into Haverhill.

Centre manager Annie Munson said: "Historically, we've done a lot of work in the Haverhill area and at one time it was one of our busiest areas until the Cambridge refuge become established."

'Impressed': Maureen Byrne.

The refuge, which is situated near Bury St Edmunds, has space for eight women and their families, who usually stay for up to six months while they are given the support to get their lives back on track.

It also provides a telephone service for women who cannot come to the centre but need help.

Since April this year, the refuge has helped 12 women from Haverhill via this service.

Haverhill Town Council has promised £3,000 for the new minibus and the charity is hoping to raise the full amount before next summer.

Mrs Munson explained the vehicle is used to pick up as many of the victim's belongings as is possible after they have left an abusive relationship and also to move women into new accommodation.

It is also used to take women and their children on trips and holidays while they live at the refuge.

Cllr Maureen Byrne said: "I'm sensitive and keen to be involved in the refuge. I was amazed at their work when I visited."

"I know that there are massive concerns about funding next year, as a lot of their funding is under threat, so this would really help them."

The refuge will also be applying for further grants and fundraising to gather the remaining cash for the new minibus.

Police chief ready to retire next year after long service

BY RAYMOND BROWN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A CHIEF Constable announced he is quitting the job just days after the election of the county's first 'super sheriff'.

Suffolk's lead officer Simon Ash has revealed that he will retire next year.

He is eligible for retirement, having completed more than 30 years of service as a police officer in Kent, Hertfordshire and Suffolk.

Mr Ash joined Suffolk police as Chief Constable in 2007 on a five-year fixed-term contract until June 2012, which was further extended for a year.

Following his decision to retire, Mr Ash said: "My contract with Suffolk was due to come to an end earlier in the year but I decided to remain in post to oversee the transition to the Police and Crime Commissioner."

"With the election behind us, it

Retirement plan: Chief Constable Simon Ash.

now seems an appropriate time to hand over to a new Chief Constable, who can take the Constabulary forward with the new Police and Crime Commissioner, Tim Passmore.

"I will be working with Tim to support him through his first three months."

"I have worked closely with Tim over the past five years in his role as leader of Mid Suffolk District Council and I wish him every success for the future.

"The PCC heralds a major change to the way in which policing is governed and I know he will have the full support of my colleagues in his work over the coming years."

Mr Ash will be taking up a position as an independent member of the Parole Board when he leaves the Constabulary in February.

Mr Passmore, Suffolk's new Police and Crime Commissioner, said: "I would like to thank Simon for the support he has given me to date."

"It is not by accident that Suffolk is one of the safest counties Simon has led Suffolk Constabulary through some testing financial times and I applaud him for his commitment to the Constabulary."

"I now look forward to recruiting a new Chief Constable to work with me to continue to shape our policing service to meet the challenge of keeping all Suffolk's communities safe."

'I couldn't lose baby Emily'

Clare Braybrook was rushed into emergency open heart surgery and her daughter was delivered at just 31 weeks. Interview by EMMA HIGGINBOTHAM.

BABIES don't come much bonnier than Emily Braybrook. With her sparkling eyes and deliciously chubby cheeks, she's an absolute beauty – and mum Clare clearly dotes on her.

"The other day we were messing about and she was proper belly-laughing; I just sat there crying with laughter," grins Clare, 33. "She's just gorgeous. And she's precious. I know that everyone's child is, but she really is to me, because I could have lost her."

Emily's entry into the world couldn't have been more dramatic. On Friday, January 13 this year, she was delivered by Caesarean section at Papworth Hospital, moments before Clare had emergency open heart surgery to treat a potentially fatal condition.

At just 31 weeks, Emily was dangerously premature – and both mum and baby's lives hung in the balance.

Until that day, Clare had had a perfect pregnancy. Fit and healthy – she and husband Patrick are both PE teachers at St Ivo School – Clare couldn't wait to become a mum. "We married in June last year, and I got pregnant straight away. We were over the moon because that was what we both wanted, and I loved being pregnant."

The drama began to unfold when Clare was returning from a school netball match in Peterborough. "All the students were on the bus, and just before I got on, I had this agonising pain in my chest.

"I've never felt anything like it. It was like a stabbing pain, and I could feel it in my back and coming up into my throat. It was just awful. I sat on the bus and couldn't move: I couldn't even talk, and normally I talk for England."

Back at school, Clare collected her car and started to drive to her Longstanton home: "I got onto the A14 and thought 'no, I've got to get off'. I came off at Fenstanton – I only have to get to the next junction, but I just couldn't.

"I've got a friend who lives in Fenstanton, so I knocked on his door and said 'I feel awful'."

Patrick collected her and, back at home, Clare went straight to bed: "I slept for about an hour, but when I woke up it was worse. The pain was just immense."

The couple headed to Addenbrooke's, where Clare was seen straight away, but doctors were baffled: an ECG and an X-ray came back clear, as did other tests. But something was obviously very wrong.

"Because they were examining me they asked me to lie down, but it just hurt too much. I ended up standing up, rocking from side to side. I just didn't know what to do to get rid of the pain."

It wasn't until the following afternoon that Clare was finally diagnosed. "This really lovely cardiologist came in to scan my heart, then he just held my hand and said 'I'm really sorry, it's bad news.' My first words to him were 'you are joking?' And he said 'no, I'm really sorry. Your aorta is dissecting.'"

It transpired that Clare's aorta – the main artery that pumps blood away from the heart – had a tear, "and if it erupts, you'll die instantly," she says.

"He didn't tell me that, he just said that I needed to have it operated on now. Then suddenly it was like a scene out of Holby City: there just were people everywhere."

The neo-natal team explained to Clare that she'd need an emergency Caesarean: "I was gutted, because I knew the score: 31 weeks is very early, and I knew there was a chance I could lose my baby."

"And actually, in all of it, it was never about me. It was always 'I don't want to lose my child'. It's all I'd ever wanted. I couldn't lose my baby."

The medical team gave the couple a moment alone, "and I said to Patrick 'right, we need to decide on a boy's name and a girl's name, because if my baby dies, I don't want it not to have a name'. That was really important."

"If it was a boy, Patrick really wanted Ben, and I wanted James. But to be honest I could've picked any name and he would've said yes!"

"He fully understood what was going on, and he tried so hard to hold back tears, to be strong. We thought everything was peachy: we'd just got married, we had a new house, we were having a baby, and suddenly the world had come crashing down."

Clare was then blue-lighted to Papworth and wheeled straight into theatre: "and I turned to

Personal triumphs

So small: Emily in the neonatal intensive care unit at Addenbrooke's.

Patrick and said 'I'm really scared now'.

"And Nicola Jones, the anaesthetist, said 'look, everything's fine'. She started to talk through little things she was going to do, and it really reassured me, and I just thought 'you're so nice!'."

"Then Nicola said to Patrick 'you need to say goodbye', and I remember him saying 'I love you' and giving me a kiss, and that was all I remembered until I woke up. And I can't thank Nicola enough, because he never left the room for me. She'd timed it so that it was my last memory."

A maternity team who'd come across from Addenbrooke's delivered Emily first, then Clare's sternum was cut open so that the heart surgeon, Mr Nashef, could get to work. Worryingly, further complications were revealed: one of Clare's valves was leaking and had to be replaced with a mechanical replica.

Meanwhile Patrick, the couple's parents and Clare's brother were able to see Emily briefly before she was whisked away to the neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) at Addenbrooke's.

"Then they had such a long wait. I didn't come out of theatre until 1 o'clock in the morning. And I feel for them, because I had the easy job, lying there! But to wait until I am when you've been there since 4 in the afternoon, not knowing if your wife, sister, daughter is going to be OK... I wouldn't have wanted to be in their shoes."

Clare finally woke up at 8.15am: "and the nurse said 'you've had a baby girl!'" she says, smiling at the memory. "The staff had taken pictures when Emily had been delivered, and put them up on the wall so I could see them all the time. That was really, really lovely."

Exhausted and in pain, Clare admits that she found being in hospital "really hard. But not being able to see my own child, not being able to hold her, touch her, look at her – that was the hardest."

"They started a diary, which was brilliant: the nurses at Addenbrooke's would write things like 'Mummy, I've had a really good day today, I've got my bunny with me...' They'd taken her footprints, so I could see how tiny her feet were, and Pat had taken video clips – but it's not the same. All I could think was 'if my baby dies, and I haven't seen her, what will I do?'"

By the following Tuesday, doctors agreed that Clare was well enough to visit Emily, "so my dad drove us to Addenbrooke's: I've never known him to drive so slow! I couldn't move: I just sat really still, because I was in a lot of pain."

When they arrived, Clare was put in a wheelchair and taken to NICU: "and then I saw her, and I just cried. It was just the best moment in my life."

"I couldn't hold her, and you can't stroke them because they're so sensitive, so I touched her tummy, her head, her feet. She just looked beautiful. She was perfect.

Tubes and all, she was my child, and it was amazing."

Happily Clare was discharged the following afternoon, "and that evening they said 'do you want to hold her?' So I sat in this chair and they put her on me – and I was just overwhelmed. I can't tell you how lovely it was. I thought 'OK, if the worst does happen, at least I've held my baby.'"

Emily made excellent progress, and was soon transferred to Hinchingsbrooke: "and we then went to the hospital every day for the next four weeks," recalls Clare.

"But I could only manage an hour and a half a day. It would take me the whole morning to get up, get washed and dressed, then we'd go to the hospital and come home. And that would be enough – I'd be really tired."

"Patrick was brilliant because he did all of the care for me and our daughter. For a man to be put in that situation and be the main carer straight away, that's hard, especially for someone who's never changed a nappy in his life!"

On February 18, Emily was finally discharged and, needless to say, Clare was overjoyed: "I'd seen all these mums coming out with their car seats and their babies so often, and I was desperate for it to be us."

"So then when it was us, I was walking down the corridor going 'this is the best feeling in the world! Look at us! We're taking our newborn baby home!' It was so good."

Today, both Emily and Clare continue to thrive. In fact the only tell-tale sign of the year's earlier trauma is Clare's impressive scar, which stretches downwards from high on her breastbone.

"Everyone at the NHS has been brilliant," she says. "My life's been saved and my daughter's life has been saved. I have moments where I look at her and I just cry. I just think wow, you're a little fighter, and I'm so lucky."

Doctors still aren't sure why Clare had the condition, but think it's probably due to a genetic disorder. "We just don't know," she says.

"I do sometimes think 'why me?', especially when I know the chances of having another child are next to nothing, because the risk is too high. I could have another dissection and not be so lucky, and ultimately I can't leave Emily without a mum."

"It is difficult knowing you can't have another, but there are thousands of preemie mums who lose their baby, and I didn't. So I feel very, very lucky, and really proud to have such a special little girl."

"And if it is a genetic disorder, being pregnant highlighted it, so I'm grateful to her. She fought for her life – and saved mine too."

Clare has raised more than £2,000 for Papworth Hospital Charity (www.papworthhospitalcharity.org.uk), and is also a supporter of Bliss, the premature baby charity. She has done a five-mile walk with other families in aid of fundraising project Tiny Hands for Bliss – a charity song written by Cassana Rason, a 'Bliss Champion' who helped her. Runners hit cash jackpot

MORE than £3,000 has been handed over to charity following Haverhill's first Sport Relief mile.

Around 200 people took part in the event in March, which was organised by Haverhill Running Club in partnership with Abbeycroft Leisure, by running, jogging and walking one, three or six miles.

Runners set off from Haverhill Leisure Centre and raised £3,318 for projects supported by Comic Relief.

Trevor Bunch, chairman of Haverhill Running Club, said:

"We are overwhelmed by the amount raised by the event – it has exceeded all of our expectations and makes all of the effort worthwhile."

"The majority of the money was raised by the participants in the form of sponsorship, so I want to thank each and every person who took part."

The event was a community effort with members of the running club and Haverhill Ladies' Hockey Club marshalling the event. St Edmundsbury Borough Council allowed organisers to use the Railway Walk and Haverhill Town Council organised the PA system, which enabled participants to have an aerobic warm-up session and music for the runners throughout the event.

Amelia Epton, Abbeycroft's children and young people programme manager, added: "As with all first events, you never know quite what to expect, but we were thrilled with the turnout in March and we are even more delighted that such a fantastic community event has raised so much money for people in need."

Scheme raises hopes for jobs

HUNDREDS of young jobless people could gain skills in a project to revive an overgrown and derelict area.

Plans for the Puddlebrook site in Haverhill are at the "very early stages", councils have said.

But it is believed up to 800 young jobless people could help transform the site into a usable area.

Suffolk County Council, St Edmundsbury Borough Council and Haverhill Town Council are discussing options for the site on the Clements estate, between the doctors' surgery and primary school.

A meeting was due to be held yesterday to consider ideas and how to advance the project by consulting people living nearby and young people.

Simon Pickering, youth and community officer at St Edmundsbury, said using the site as an employment scheme was being considered.

He added: "We would get 18- to 24-year-old unemployed people to clear it and they would receive training and gain skills in health and safety, first aid and conservation. At the end of it, they would be more employable and engaged in something that is positive."

"The site is very overgrown and it's impossible to see what could go on there. No decisions have been made about the final use of the site."

"We're in the very early stages of putting a project plan together and will be consulting with residents and young people about our ideas."

Puddlebrook used to be an adventure playground in the 1960s and '70s, but was closed by the council. It was brought and reinstated some years ago as a BMX track, but again fell into disuse.

Will Austin, town clerk in Haverhill, added: "The town council is supportive in principle and is keen to see the proposals develop to fulfil the needs of young people in Haverhill and to foster links with wider issues such as skills, employment and anti-social behaviour. The project offers opportunities in all of these areas."

It is hoped the first stages of the scheme will be started by next summer.

They're currently gearing up for their busiest time of year, and have a huge range of wonderful meats to choose from to keep you and your family fed this festive season.

"Our turkeys are fresh and locally-sourced from nearby farms," says Paul Prentice. "Christmas orders are now being taken – they need to be in by December 15 if you're to be in time for Christmas Day. Just give us a call.

"We offer competitive prices with all good supermarkets and we deliver for free, so you don't have to queue up for your turkey on Christmas Eve."

While turkey is undoubtedly the most popular choice for Christmas dinner, Paul explains that other meats, such as Christmas hams, beef and pork joints, are sought-after too, and make ideal meals for the family in the run-up to Christmas or for a New Year's feast.

"Duck is very popular too, and venison. We also do all the traditional trimmings like pigs in blankets and cocktail sausages, which are all freshly made on the premises."

A local, family-run company through and through, Paul sees many regulars pass through his door, and looks forward to welcoming customers new and old this Christmas: make sure to keep an eye out in the window for his latest weekly offer. And if you're wondering what your local butcher eats for Christmas dinner, it's turkey too.

Christmas All Wrapped Up

Should Christmas be Christian?

Paul Turner of the River of Life Church says a Christ-centred Christmas is a hope-filled Christmas

I READ an article once in which someone was complaining about Christians using C S Lewis' story The Lion The Witch and The Wardrobe as a way of explaining the Christian gospel.

I think the comment was "Can't these Christians leave anything alone?" The reality is, of course, that CS Lewis wrote his story as a way of trying to explain the gospel story to children. Sometimes, when I hear of objections to the term Christmas, I wonder if a similar sentiment has found its way into this time of year.

Without wanting to appear a humbug I can't help but notice that Christmas is sometimes a time when problems look a lot worse. Expectations may cause us to sink deeper into financial difficulties, tensions in family relationships sometimes become more acute or feelings of loneliness are amplified. In the light of these kinds of issues it does seem (to me) that there is justification for keeping Christmas a Christian festival.

At the heart of Christian Christmas celebrations is the belief that humankind is in real need of a Saviour. A patronising thought perhaps for some, but when we look around the world and at some of the problems in our own nation let alone in our own personal lives I tend to think that it would be quite helpful to have a Saviour.

When angels proclaimed the birth of Jesus to a group of shepherds on a hillside they declared: "Today in the town of David a Saviour has been born to you...and on earth peace to those on whom his favour rests." (Luke, Chapter 2).

If we read the rest of the story in the Gospels we will notice that Jesus was born into a turbulent world and in difficult circumstances for his mother Mary. The bringing of this peace and salvation was not necessarily going to be easy.

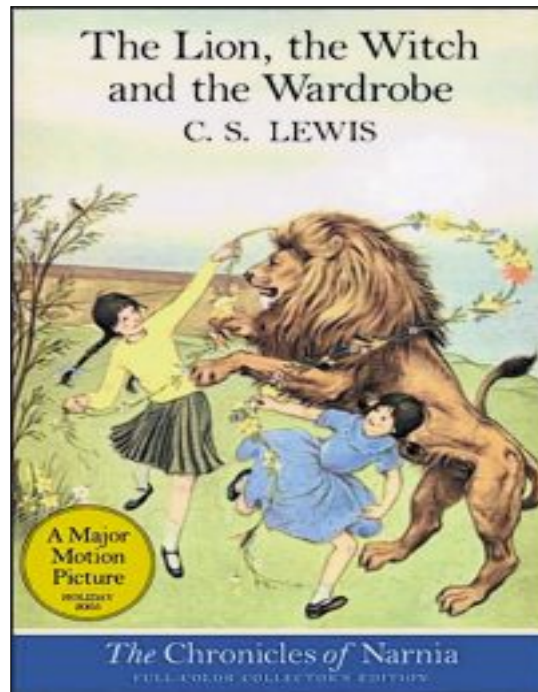

So what does Christmas mean to me? When I first became a Christian I really struggled with seeing Christmas as a Christian celebration. So much of what happens around Christmas just doesn't seem to have much to do with Jesus Christ. Don't get me wrong, I love the fun and family of this time of year, but I just couldn't grasp why I should call it Christian.

But, as time has gone on, I've come to realise that it is the absence of Christ in so much of what we do that shows us why we need him most.

It is clear to me that we are certainly in need of a Saviour.

When I think of the Christmas story I see a God who did come into this world, who did get his hands dirty and who does offer us the opportunity to find personal peace.

A Christ-centred Christmas is a hope-filled Christmas and it seems to me that it would be a shame to take that away from the centre of our thoughts and celebrations.

Christian message: CS Lewis' 'The Lion, The Witch & The Wardrobe'.

but people can come in beforehand and have some hot chocolate with us, we'll be serving mince pies and mulled wine too – you don't have to buy a carpet, just come in warm up!"

While people seem busy with all manner of things at this time of year, Phillipa says their business rarely slows down on the run-up to Christmas.

"People want their living rooms looking lovely for Christmas Day because that's the room you spend time in," she explains. "This is a really busy period for us."

GJ Hunt Flooring opened in Haverhill two and a half years ago, and husband Gavin had been trading in the town for ten years before that, so knows the local area and what local customers want.

"We offer all kinds of carpets – and anything that goes on the floor, really. In the New Year we're looking to include ceramics and floor tiles."

Speaking of current trends she adds: "Whereas laminate flooring was popular for a while, fluffy carpets are becoming more and more popular again these days. It's the warmth and the comfort that they offer. You can't beat that softness underfoot."

GJ Hunt Flooring is situated in High Street, Haverhill, and can be contacted on (01440) 708080.

WE all want our homes looking splendid for Christmas, so if you've suddenly noticed your stairs are looking a bit tatty or spotted a red wine stain on your cream living room carpet (you KNEW you shouldn't have asked the rowdy Robinsons over for Christmas drinks), now may be the time to get something new fitted.

Phillipa Hunt runs GJ Hunt Flooring with husband Gavin, and has lots of offers on the go this festive season.

"We're running a promotion on two of our carpets, festively called 'sumptuous' and 'celebration,'" she says. "There's 10 per cent off both of them until the end of December. Then on late-night shopping on December 7, we're doing 20 per cent off all orders booked that night. They don't have to be fitted in before Christmas," she explains, "but as long as they've booked that night they can benefit from that offer. We did it last year and it was very successful."

"The late-night shopping is always a great event. Every year on the recreation ground they have a big fireworks display by the town council, and there's usually a fair all the way up the high street with Christmas stalls... I think the fireworks start at 8pm which is around when we tend to close,

Supermarket date for food bank workers

REPRESENTATIVES of a community food bank scheme were invited into a supermarket last weekend to benefit from the generosity of customers.

Volunteers from Haverhill Food Bank attended Saffron Walden Waitrose store on Saturday to accept food donations from shoppers.

Customers were invited to buy an item from a list of goods and donate it so that food parcels could be supplied to people in need within local communities – as part of the chain's Giving More This Christmas campaign.

Mel Maycock from the supermarket said: "The response from customers was once again fantastic and we would like to express our thanks to all of them for their generosity."

Store giant backs bid to help needy

A STORE in Haverhill is taking part in the nation's biggest ever food collection bid this weekend.

Tesco is running Help Feed People in Need with the help of food charity FareShare and foodbank charity the Trussell Trust.

Residents are encouraged to pop to the store and donate a can – or two – to the cause, which will then be distributed to families in need.

Tesco staff will also give customers who want to take part special shopping lists to encourage them to buy everyday items like cereals, rice, instant coffee, tinned food and sauces.

The store will be topping up total donations by 30 per cent and will be providing funding to both organisations to help them continue to work in the communities.

Philip Clarke, chief executive of Tesco, said: "Tesco feeds more families in the UK than any other supermarket, and we work hard to make sure people can eat well even if they don't have a lot of money.

"This Christmas, we want to use our scale and our links with communities across the country to help tackle this growing problem.

"We recently held some local food collections and were overwhelmed by the support from our customers, who have shown incredible generosity.

"I hope they'll support the biggest ever food collection in the UK and help us to feed hundreds of thousands of people in need."

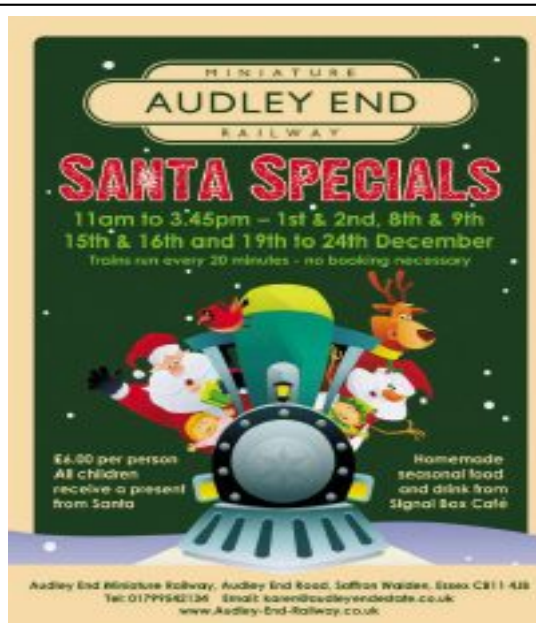

The collections will run this weekend from 9am until 5pm.

Health quest award

WEST Suffolk NHS Foundation Trust has been presented with a regional award in recognition of the steps it takes to help its staff stay healthy.

The trust has received a 'staying healthy at work' (SHaW) accreditation from NHS East of England, which comes following the introduction of a wide variety of initiatives to boost health and wellbeing among the hospital's 2,600-strong workforce.

Initiatives launched include promoting physical activity, appointing a health and wellbeing coordinator and sign-posting to help staff stop smoking.

Musical trip back to Victorian London

FIFTY-TWO years after its premiere in London, and having enjoyed several West End revivals since then, Oliver! remains one of the nation's best-loved and most popular musicals.

The tale of the Dickensian orphan comes to Cambridge this week in a production by Cambridge Operatic Society. The story charts Oliver's adventures as he escapes the brutalities of the poorhouse and finds refuge with small-time crook Fagin and his gang of pick-pocketing children.

The show features all the classic musical numbers, including Consider Yourself, Where is Love and As Long as He Needs Me.

Local actors will take up these iconic roles, including Scott Riley from Saffron Walden, who is looking forward to donning his overcoat and long grey beard as Fagin. "It was an honour to get the part," says Scott. "He's quirky – it's not as if he's really deep and dark like in the original novel, but in the theatre show he's got a sense of humour as well as a slightly dark side."

"It's slightly nerve-racking as it's one of those shows where everyone knows the songs and everyone knows the characters, so there's a lot of pressure. But it's going to be loads of fun.

"I've had the full make-up done once for the photoshoot, with the wig, the facial hair... I texted a photo to a friend and they didn't recognise me. It's definitely weird getting used to all the things stuck to your face."

This will be Scott's first turn with CaOS, but his portfolio includes many professional roles starting when he was just a boy with a part in The Life and Loves of a She-Devil for the BBC, alongside Tom Baker. You may also have seen him in My Fair Lady and Guy and Dolls at the Arts Theatre in recent years.

Having toured throughout the country, Scott is now enjoying settling down with his partner Laura and three children George, 6, Oscar, 4 and Eliza, seven weeks (not necessarily a nod to My Fair Lady, he laughs).

What do his children think about his job? Have they seen his Fagin costume?

"The two boys have already got their tickets so they'll be coming along. All they do at the moment is sing the songs which is great. They've seen photographs of me in costume and I've got the big Fagin coat here at home so they know what to expect. They've seen me dressed up and looking like all sorts – it's just Daddy being daft. And there's no better feeling than being on stage and seeing them in the audience. It's such a fantastic feeling."

Scott is also full of praise for his on-stage children, with whom he shares a lot of scenes:

"They're brilliant, they all are. Oliver and Dodger are on stage so much and they're just phenomenal."

"And the rest of the cast are lovely, there's a great family feeling in rehearsals. We have a great time and we just want the audiences to have fun too."

■ Oliver!, Cambridge Arts Theatre, until Saturday, 7.30pm. Tickets start at £15 from (01223) 503333 / www.cambridgearts.theatre.com

Come up and see him

ROCK icon Steve Harley performs a stripped back set of his extensive back catalogue in an intimate show at The Junction in Cambridge next week. Famous for his time in the 70s with Cockney Rebel, who charted with hits including Make Me Smile (Come up and See Me), which reached Number One in 1975, Steve's other chart singles include Judyteen, Mr Soft, Here, Comes the Sun, Love's a Prima Donna and Friend for Life. He has written lyrics for several other artists, including his old friend Rod Stewart who has called him "one of the finest lyricists the UK has ever produced". The majority of his live shows are with his rock band, but many are in the stripped to the bare bones acoustic format including this show at The Junction, with just one or two other musicians accompanying him. This is an all-seated show in association with Green Mind. ■ Steve Harley, The Junction, Cambridge, December 5. Tickets £22 in advance. Call (01223) 511511 / www.junction.co.uk

Chiller queen

THE first Christmas show of the season opened yesterday at the ADC Theatre, where the famous student stage has been transformed into snow-covered, magical wonderland for the celebrated Footlights pantomime. Always relied upon to offer something that little bit different, the Footlights and Cambridge University Amateur Dramatic Club panto puts a heavy focus on witty scripting, Monty Python-style humour and outside-the-box storylines. Don't expect your usual Cinderellas and Aladdins: with Theseus and the Minotaur and Treasure Island among their recent offerings, this year we're invited to enter the wintry world of The Snow Queen. Here, clumsy goblins have trapped the town of Achoo under an icy spell and it's down to Gerda and her best friend Kay to save the day. The trouble is, Kay seems to have suddenly, mysteriously vanished. . . Embarking on the adventure alone, Gerda soon finds herself face-to-face with Scandinavia's nastiest, pastiest, sassiest diva: the Snow Queen herself. Performed by the finest comic actors from the same world-famous troupe that gave us Stephen Fry, Hugh Laurie, John Cleese, Mitchell & Webb and more, this quirky Christmas show is worth a punt if puns and 'he's behind you' jokes don't quite fill your stocking. It was written by Máirín O'Hagan, Max Levine and Ali Lewis, and everything from the score to the set has been dreamed up and put together by students. Still, if past productions are anything to go by, you'll be hard pressed to believe it. ■ The Snow Queen, ADC Theatre, until Saturday. Tickets £12 (£10 concessions). Contact (01223) 300085 / www.adctheatre.com.

Bard's tale of conflict

DILEMMAS of country and family, honour and frivolity are called into question in a 'bold and daring' new production of Shakespeare's Coriolanus, performed at the Corpus Playroom in Cambridge next week. One of the playwright's most powerful tragedies, Coriolanus sees a hero of Rome returning home to be pressured by his mother into running for political office. But he has enemies in the Senate, and soon discovers his military skill won't be enough to protect him here. Tickets are £6 (£5 concessions) and the show runs until Saturday, 7pm. Book at (01223) 503333 / www.cambridgeartstheatre.com.

Still razzling and dazzling

BOB Fosse's sexy and stylish musical Chicago comes to Cambridge next week – starring two top names from British soap operas. Ali Bastian, of Hollyoaks fame, takes the lead as Roxy Hart, appearing alongside EastEnders' Stefan Booth as Billy Flynn. Based on real life events back in the roaring 1920s, nightclub singer Roxie shoots her lover and along with Cell Block rival, double-murderess Velma Kelly, they fight to keep from death row with the help of smooth talking lawyer, Flynn. Chicago's sexy, sassy score includes All That Jazz and Razzle Dazzle. ■ Chicago, Cambridge Corn Exchange, December 3 to December 8. The big film

GREAT EXPECTATIONS certificate 12A, 2h 8m

EXPECTATIONS were certainly great when Mike Newell announced this lavish retelling of the Charles Dickens classic to coincide with the bicentenary of the writer's birth. David Nicholls, author of Starter For Ten and One Day, penned the script and some of the brightest stars of the British acting firmament were confirmed as the book's memorable protagonists. Confirming all of the promise, Great Expectations was chosen for the coveted closing night gala of last month's BFI London Film Festival. But as the characters in Nicholls's screenplay learn to their cost, life is full of disappointments and Newell's film has a fair few.

Arriving less than a year after the BBC's well-crafted three-part adaptation, it is both sluggish and slavish. Crucially, it fails to outshine David Lean's seminal 1946 version, even with John Mathieson's magnificent cinematography and Jason Flemyng's endearing portrayal of honest blacksmith Joe Gargery. Orphan Pip (Jeremy Irvine) has a disturbing encounter with escaped convict Magwitch (Ralph Fiennes) in the marshes close to the home he shares with his haughty sister (Sally Hawkins) and her husband (Flemyng). The boy agrees to steal food for Magwitch but police eventually apprehend the suspect. Soon after, Pip is dispatched to visit the reclusive Miss Havisham (Helena Bonham Carter), who requires a playmate for her ward, Estella (Holliday Grainger). At first Pip is scared of Miss Havisham, but once hep meets Estella his fear is replaced by infatuation and he falls under the spell of the girl. Some years later, lawyer Mr Jaggers (Robbie Coltrane) informs Pip that a mysterious benefactor has paid for the lad to become a gentleman. Pip excitedly takes up lodgings with Herbert Pocket (Olly Alexander) and slowly gains a foothold in London society, where he crosses paths once again with Estella and cannot conceal the torch he still carries for her. Irvine is an appealing leading man and David Walliams offers fleeting comic relief as Uncle Pumblechook, but Bonham Carter's anaemic portrayal of eternal bride Miss Havisham is emblematic of a film covered in the cobwebs of previous adaptations. Neither the best of times, nor the worst of times, Newell's vision falls somewhere in between.

Great garden gifts to give

This week, Hannah Stephenson brings us a few tips on some of the best presents on offer for the green-fingered this Christmas.

Under £5

■ Cupcake Stakes (Poundland, £1 each, available in stores nationwide. Stockists 0800 731 5622): If the gardener likes quirky ornaments, they can brighten up a container or perk up a border with these colourful cupcake stakes in a variety of colours and styles. Bound to create a talking point among guests.

■ Novelty Kneepad (£4.99, www.gettingpersonal.co.uk): Ideal for green-fingered friends and family, a practical gift with a fun twist. Place the foam kneepad down anywhere in the garden and save those aching knees. Available with a range of novelty phrases.

Under £10

■ myBunjee (£6.95, Perennial charity, <http://shop.perennial.org.uk>): The national horticulture charity Perennial is offering this new device which fits on to any mobile phone handset and features an extendable cord that clips to your bag, coat or belt loop, allowing you to keep your phone close and safe while you are in the garden or elsewhere. Funky colours include hot pink, lime green and black. All profits go to Perennial, the Gardeners' Royal Benevolent Society.

■ Mr Turf (£6.99-£8.99, www.thebalconygardener.com/0207431

FESTIVE OFFERINGS: The Willow Gift Basket and, above, Cupcake Stakes

5553): If your man's pedantic about his lawn, this may be the ideal stocking-filler for his desk. Mr Turf is a ceramic figure with a head full of grass, just seep him in water for an hour and then water every one to two days to watch his hair grow. He comes in five different designs and is only 8cm tall. Ideal for an office desk, windowsill or coffee table.

Under £20

■ Enamel Herb Pots In A Tray (£14.95, Burgon & Ball): Keep favourite kitchen herbs to hand this Christmas in these stylish and contemporary pots. They're pre-printed with basil, parsley and thyme but any label can be slotted into the window. Available in Jersey Cream and Lime Green.

■ Aged Ceramic Bird Bath (£18.50, www.thebalconygardener.com/0207431 5553): This decorative blue and white patterned birdbath will not only benefit your feathered friends but is easy on the eye too.

■ Decorative Enamel Watering Can (£17, National Trust online shop at <http://shop.nationaltrust.org.uk>): Traditional garden design meets contemporary graphic styling in renowned British illustrator Sally Elford's watering can. It was inspired by the gardens at Emmetts and Wakehurst Place and with a nod to Fibonacci numbers.

Under £30

■ Gardeners' Hand Care Tin (£25, Crabtree & Evelyn, www.crabtree-evelyn.co.uk/08001114406): This luxurious new tin from Crabtree & Evelyn makes the perfect pampering present for any tired gardener with sore hands. The subtle pastel green and white tin contains a nail buffer and four favourites formulated with soothing herbs and shea butter for hands that are wonderfully moisturised and conditioned.

■ Willow Gift Basket (£24.99, Thompson

& Morgan, www.giftstm.com, 0844 573 6011): This yummy hamper is packed with luxury goodies, from old-fashioned traditional recipe biscuits and preserves to creamy fudge. Each product is made in the UK from the finest natural ingredients and presented in a reusable woven basket finished with a satin ribbon.

Over £30

■ Boppers High-top Welly Trainers (between £34.99 and £39.99, available from garden centres and retailers across the UK): Fed up with gardening wellies? Briers has brought out these new, shiny-finish high-top welly trainers to combine casual, practical footwear with a colourful splash of fashion. Available in four PVC colours – pink, purple, black and red – they're a funky way of being splash-proof and stylish at the same time.

■ Extra Small Station Lantern (£34.95 www.culinaryconcepts.co.uk or mail order on 01252 852 305): This statement lantern looks great inside or out, in any living space. The stainless steel, nickel-plated lantern is perfect for the patio or to create a cosy ambience in any living room.

■ Ciso Secateurs (Bosch, £39.98, from B&Q UK stores until December 20; RRP £49.98): Anyone who finds manual pruning difficult may appreciate this powered alternative. Perfect for pruning small branches that need trimming back, the cordless Ciso has an integrated lithium-ion battery and a patented 'Power Blade' system. Gardeners can glide through branches up to 14mm thick with the press of a trigger. Comes in its own gift tin.

Wrangler is top 4x4 star

THE legendary Jeep Wrangler has demonstrated its continued success as a serious off-roader after scooping 4x4 of the Year, Hardcore class.

The award, which goes to the four-door Wrangler Unlimited, comes from long-established specialist publication 4x4 Magazine, whose panel of expert judges put the rugged US-built off-roader at the top of a list of extremely capable competitors.

The judges praised the Wrangler's awesome off-roading capability, style, equipment and value for money.

"This year's 4x4 of the Year competition was as competitive as ever. In the Hardcore class, however, first place was a unanimous vote among the judges, with the Jeep Wrangler Unlimited taking the class win," says Nigel Fryatt, editor, 4x4 Magazine.

"Head to head with the Land Rover Defender off-road there's little to choose, but if you had to live with either on a daily basis, in all-weather, all traffic conditions, on and off-road, then there's only one choice. It has to be the Jeep."

Co-Op insurance offers to bend Gender Directive

THE Co-operative Insurance has thrown a lifeline to young female motorists who are likely to see their insurance increase as a result of the Gender Directive, by doubling the discount they can get through the Young Driver telematics scheme.

New research from The Co-operative shows that the Gender Directive is a concern amongst young people, with 65 per cent of 18 to 24 year olds worried that their insurance will go up as a result.

To combat this, The Co-operative will increase the discount for safe drivers to 20 per cent for those who take out or renew a Young Driver policy after December 21. This means that if they drive safely, females should not be left out of pocket, as the increase in discount will help to offset any rise in their premium.

The Co-operative's head of motor insurance, Grant Mitchell, explains: "Young drivers are already paying above the odd for their car insurance, and it is unfortunate that the new law is likely to push prices up for young females even more.

"We know that young people are worried about what the Gender Directive means for their premium so we've increased the discount that safe drivers can achieve to help them avoid any significant increase to the cost of their insurance."

To qualify for the maximum discount, people must demonstrate safe driving in a number of categories including speed, cornering, braking and acceleration.

Although people of both genders will be entitled to the maximum discount, the Co-operative expects that more women than men will qualify, as its data proves that young females tend to drive more safely. It shows that whilst 60 per cent of 17 and 18 year old females currently get the full discount, just 31 per cent of males of the same age do.

As well as reducing the cost of insurance, the Young Driver scheme is also helping to improve road safety, as the Co-operative has already seen car crashes drop by a fifth among users. Around 30,000 young motorists are already signed up to the scheme.

Restyled RCZ due in January

THE restyled, new Peugeot RCZ which had its world premiere at September's Paris Motor Show will be launched in January.

For the UK, the New RCZ retains its popular, two-level 'Sport' and 'GT' range line-up.

RCZ Sport continues with 18-inch 'Original' alloy wheels and a host of familiar features including dual-zone aircon, rear parking aid and USB box with Bluetooth. This rich specification is enhanced further by the addition of automatic lighting, including 'Approach' and 'Follow-me-home' features. New options on RCZ Sport include half leather and leather/Alcantara trim treatments.

At the GT level, chosen by more than 80 per cent of customers, the New RCZ is fitted with 19-inch 'Technical' alloy wheels as standard. This new wheel is designed to maintain the dynamic visual appeal of GT, while also marking the advent of the restyle with a fresh new look. The dynamism continues into the cabin of GT models with the standard fitment of interior sports kit, complete with sports steering wheel and gear lever. Simple leather continues to define the interior of GT with the addition of an optional Chiba Brown colour.

Prices for New RCZ Sport start at £21,595 (an increase of £385 over the current RCZ Sport).

Hounsomes' quickfire treble

Aztecs 12 Thurlow Whites 0
CAMBS MINI LEAGUE, UNDER-9D

AZTECS produced a stunning first-half performance of superb passing football which put them 10-0 up at the break.

Freddie Hounsomes and Lloyd Blackburn put Aztecs two up in the opening minutes, and Hounsomes went on to complete a hat-trick in just eight minutes.

Blackburn then added his second and Jordan Chipps made in six after 13 minutes. Ethan Hallam finished well from a Bart Purser corner for No 7 and Purser then got in on the act with a five-minute hat-trick of his own.

The goalscoring slowed down in the second half but Aztecs continued to play good football.

More goals eventually came late in the game with Alex Sam scoring his first goal before Chipps rounded off the scoring.

There was still time for keeper Oliver Scroggie to preserve a clean sheet when he raced off his line to make a great save.

Burwell Tigers 1 West Watting 2
CAMBRIDGE & DIST COLTS LEAGUE, UNDER-13A

WRATTING'S dominant first half

» Martial arts

MEMBERS of Chalkstone Karate Club shone in their latest round of grading examinations.

Members were tested on Kata, Kumite and basic techniques, and the following grades were awarded.

8th Kyu (orange belt): Danny Ward, James Martinez, Shaun Roberts, Kartikaa Parthipan, Stephen Parish, Aiden Parish; 7th Kyu (yellow belt):

set them up for victory in a close match.

The visitors created a stack of chances, but the breakthrough, though inevitable, was slightly fortunate as the Tigers keeper fumbled a Jayden Bayford inswinging corner into the net.

Daniel Cordwell gave Watting breathing space early in the second half, finishing off a poorly defended cross.

However, Tigers refused to give in, even when reduced to 10 men, and a fluent passing move down the right wing saw the ball cut back to the edge of the box and a first-time shot sail into the net.

In a grandstand finish, Tigers pressed forward, but Watting's defence of Keirnan Harding, Keiron Lindsay, Rory Cameron and keeper Charlie Mitchison worked hard to secure the win.

Goals from Josh Lee, Jack Lisher and Finley Plant gave West Watting a 3-2 victory over Cottenham United in Cambs Mini League, Division 11B.

Comberton Crusaders 3 Kedington 4
CAMBRIDGE & DIST COLTS LEAGUE, UNDER-15A

KEDINGTON started at a blistering pace and were ahead

inside the first minute when Cameron Larkin intercepted a Comberton pass and started a move which ended with Kieran Harrison converting Ellis Wiffen's cross.

A few minutes later they doubled their lead, and it was Harrison again on target with a rocket shot from Jason Moore's pass.

George Mustoe's pass then freed Ty Alleyne to neatly beat the keeper and make it 3-0.

Comberton managed to pull one back before Kedington scored again, Alleyne latching on to Conor Rankin's cross, only to be felled by the keeper as he took it past him.

Harrison converted the penalty for his hat-trick, and it was 4-1 at half time.

Comberton mounted a spirited second-half comeback, scoring twice and forcing Kedington keeper and man of the match Jack Davis to produce some good saves, including an amazing double block.

Manager Neil Mustoe said: "This was a strange match – we started strongly and then faded as the game progressed. We were lucky to come away winners."

Skipper Warren the leading light

Haverhill 45 Cottenham 30
UNDER-NINE/10

CAPTAIN Ben Warren scored the first try as Haverhill welcomed Cottenham to Castle Playing Fields for their first competitive fixture.

The newcomers competed well against a Haverhill side missing many of its regulars, and they soon levelled Warren's opening try.

Luke Wheeler and Oscar Harwood combined well, with Harwood crossing for his first of the match, while Rohan Surti and Alex Baker worked hard to shut down the opposition attack.

Charlie Harvey and Riley Brown both crashed over to put Haverhill in front, before Cottenham added three tries before half time to tie the game at the break.

The home side were slow starters in the second half, allowing the visitors to nose in front, before Sam Davis and Ronnie Short turned over ball on the floor, allowing Freddie Atkins to rumble forward, offloading to John Adams to score in the corner.

Lewis Craske made an impressive debut with some intelligent runs into the opposing half, but it was the combination of pace, power and aggression from Harvey, Harwood and Warren that put the fixture beyond the visitors' reach as the three scored a try apiece in the closing minutes.

Haverhill 40 Cottenham 30
UNDER-11/12

ON a blustery day Haverhill started well and Jake North powered over to open the scoring, before Cottenham touched down twice to go in front.

A fine run by Oliver Jury allowed Brook Broomfield to score in the corner, and shortly after Haverhill were back in front when North used his strength to go over for his second.

Despite some superb tackling by Alfie Barnes, George Harvey and North, Cottenham scored again, leaving the teams level at half time.

From the restart, Cottenham broke through a sleepy Haverhill defence to score. This spurred Haverhill on and good runs by Stanley Short, Deano Prior and Zac Baldwin allowed Haverhill to gain ground and soon Dean Cleary went over for his first to level the score.

Jury and Harvey added further tries, before Cottenham replied again.

From the kick-off a fine chase by Harvey saw him tackle the receiver and win the ball to score his second.

After some good defence by Haverhill, Harvey broke free with support from Broomfield, who collected the ball and touched down to put Haverhill three in front.

Cottenham came back strongly and, after several attacks were stopped by Haverhill's defence, they eventually broke through for the final try of the match.

Shulver handed reins at Rovers

HAVERHILL Rovers have appointed Ali Shulver as interim manager until the end of the season.

Shulver, who has worked for Rovers' youth set-up for a number of years, takes over from Peter Betts, who recently announced his intention to step down.

Betts will continue to play a part in an advisory role and occasionally in the dressing room and dugout.

A club statement said: "With the first team enjoying a fine run of form, it was felt that a mid-season appointment could prove disruptive.

"The committee also noted that on the occasions when Mr Shulver had taken charge this season the first-team players had performed well, thus negating the need for a rushed appointment.

"The committee still intend to appoint a new manager for the 2013-2014 season, and have made contact with all interested parties who applied for the position, informing them of the postponement of the interview process.

"Applications for the permanent manager's position will be sought once again in the new year, with the committee intending to appoint by the end of the current season to enable the new post holder to have a full pre-season to assemble their new squad."

Rovers' match away to Ely last Saturday was postponed because of a waterlogged pitch. They are due to host Woodbridge Town in the league on Saturday.

Seven's heaven: Aaron Forshaw and Ryan Weaver celebrate the only goal in Haverhill Sports Association's 1-0 win over Great Bentley in the Essex & Suffolk Border League on Saturday. HSA travel to White Notley in the league this weekend.

Team fully focused on shield defence

HAVERHILL RFC will be out to retain the title they won last season when they face Brightlingsea in the final of the Suffolk Shield on Saturday.

Haverhill will be hosting the match (kick-off 2pm) and are appealing for spectators to come and cheer them on.

The England match against the All Blacks will also be shown on a big screen in the clubhouse.
